

Community Practice and Action Endorsement Survey

Provide responses to the following criteria for fellow applicant

Community Practice and Action Criteria

There are many avenues whereby "practice" and "action" can occur at outstanding levels. The practitioner candidate must present a broad history of combined practice and community service with documented impact. Again, the major consideration is the long-term impact on the science and practice of community research and action at the local, state, regional, national and/or international levels. Outstanding contributions may include: demonstrated high quality and innovation in practice; documented broad impact of innovations; demonstrated outstanding impact on local, state and/or national programs; outstanding effective consultation to community settings such as schools, human service organizations, criminal justice agencies, etc.; sufficient program/practice longevity and use to demonstrate the exceptional value and quality of the applications; development or implementation of outstanding programs that challenge the status quo or prevailing conceptual models and applied community methods; organization of innovative conferences or programs within conferences; development of model community interventions; and political or legislative activity with more than local impact; outstanding public education activities, or use of the media for health promotion and/or disease prevention purposes; creative development or implementation of programs that translate theory into successful practice; excellence in working with community constituencies to promote empowerment; and demonstrated excellence in the assessment of program impact or effectiveness; exceptional leadership in a community organization (e.g. board member or committee chair) which has had outstanding impact on community action.

Many community practice and action activities are noteworthy but not outstanding in and of themselves. Examples of these include: lengthy service to community organizations, participation in multiple organizations, development of multiple programs or consultation to multiple organizations at the local, state or national levels; development of multiple or large conferences, workshops or public education campaigns.

The deadline for submission is December 15th 2023 @ 5pm EST.
